

IIT Kanpur Conference

Public Policy – An Indian Perspective

2nd - 3rd August, 2024

Call for Papers

The Department of Economic Sciences at IIT Kanpur is pleased to announce the 2024-25 'Conference on Public Policy: an Indian perspective'. We invite researchers who work in the areas of applied and empirical economics to submit their work. This includes research focusing on various domains of public policy in India - including, but not limited to, education, gender, climate, labour, and macroeconomic and financial policy.

We will also have special invited talks by researchers, advisors, and policy-makers, who have practical experience in developing and implementing government and regulatory policy.

Our aim is to promote the exchange of ideas and recent work on addressing the myriad issues and problems which India and other developing countries face, even as the world and the global economy and scientific development bring up new challenges for our country and its people. We hope that the academic community and policy-makers can come together to discuss their contributions and efforts and also foster new connections and future collaborations on Indian public policy.
